"The Sea Has No Mercy"

It was around 3 am in the morning. I went fishing with a cousin, South-West. I felt the air get colder, and the waves got rougher. I told my cousin "We are leaving. Let's go. Pull up the anchor."

At 3 am we pulled up the anchor and came back. At 4 am we were at the harbor, around 4 am. Unfortunately, that same morning, two of my friends were also at sea on a boat. They left the same morning, when we were coming back, they were leaving. They never came back.

I mean, you could see that the sea was changing. They never came back. There you can see the blessing and how you go with God. How you go out, as I told you before, the sea has no mercy. Nothing was left of them.
